All you need to train peer mediators for your own HIV prevention project with migrant and mobile populations or ethnic minorities.

AIDS&Mobility involves migrants in delivering HIV prevention information to their own communities. After participating in training and receiving their transcultural mediator's certificate, these peer educators initiate, organise and conduct information sessions in their own languages, making their communities aware of HIV prevention and related topics.

This Master Toolkit contains all the materials you need to implement a similar transcultural HIV and AIDS mediator project or just explore the model.

Its comprehensive "How to Use the A&M Master Toolkit" guide gives you relevant background information, explains the transcultural mediator model, suggests a handy checklist to assess how well you are prepared for this kind of work and provides step-by-step instructions to build your own project.

The documents in the toolkit are consensus versions about the project method and structure and serve as a solid basis for further local adaptation. We suggest you use them as a starting point and consider your own situation and experience when you adapt them for your own use.

What is in the Master Toolkit?

- How to Use the A&M Master Toolkit (= the guide)
- A&M Background materials (e.g. research and policy papers)
- A&M Core Training materials (e.g. slide kits, evaluation questionnaires)
- A&M Promotional materials (e.g. flyers and posters)
- Selected Resources (e.g. educational games, videos)

The Core Training materials are included in Albanian, Arabic, Danish, English, Farsi, French, German, Italian, Kurmanci, Portuguese, Romanian, Russian, Somali, Spanish, Turkish and Urdu.

We encourage you to explore and use this toolkit in your HIV prevention efforts and to inform others in your network about it.
